

News

Thomas F. Lüscher, MD, FRCP, professor and chairman of cardiology at the University Heart Center in Zurich, has been invited by Mark Pfeffer, MD, professor of cardiovascular medicine at Harvard Medical School (fig. 1), to become the 6th Annual Krakoff International Lecturer in Cardiovascular Medicine on April 9–11, 2014 and to give Grand Rounds at the Brigham and Women's Hospital on "From Eisenhower's heart attack to modern concepts of acute coronary syndromes" as well as a Vascular Biology Series seminar on "Aging and longevity genes and cardiovascular disease".

Thomas F. Lüscher is the 6th Annual Krakoff International Lecturer in Cardiovascular Medicine

The Krakoff family, entrepreneurs in fashion in the US and patients at the Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston donated an Annual International Lectureship at Harvard Medical School to foster exchange among institutions of excellence worldwide.

Professor Thomas F. Lüscher (left side) and Professor Mark Pfeffer (right side).